Turtles on the Beach

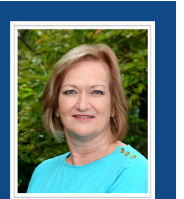

This week I participated in a spiritual retreat in North Carolina. The daily rhythm of worship, teaching, silent reflection, and sharing in community are life-giving to my body, mind, and spirit. Nearly each day I was able to walk the beach, sometimes alone and sometimes with a trusted soul-friend.

Earlier this week Jan pointed out something that I had missed. There was a protective fence, stakes and red tape, set up right in the sand, around a deep hole. It was to protect turtle eggs buried on the beach.

Healthy churches practice the building of hedges or fences around the vulnerable, creating a safe space where those at risk can thrive. I am thankful today for every Interfaith Hospitality Servant, Stephen minister, children, youth, or adult leader who creates a safe place where members of the community can feel safe. Thank you, Hyde Park Community United Methodist, for your commitment to be a place that protects the vulnerable so life can thrive.

In Christ's Joy,

Pastor Cathy

New Zealand-born concert organist, Thomas Gaynor, will present a program of organ works by Bach, Mozart, Saint-Saëns, and the complete sixth symphony of Widor. Mr. Gaynor is the first place winner of the St. Albans International Organ Competition (2017) in St. Albans, England.

A freewill offering will be taken, and a reception will follow.

BEGINNING HANDBELL LESSONS

Learn the basics of ringing this beautiful instrument. Handbells are a wonderful way to serve your inner musician - even if you've never learned another musical instrument.

Beginning October 14, Carillon Choir director, Jenny Cauhorn, will be in the music room each Monday at 6:30 PM to provide basic training in all things handbell. No appointment necessary.

Questions? Contact Jenny at jcauhorn@hpcumc.org or drop a note in her mailbox at the church.

CLIMATE CHANGE: FACTS, FICTION AND OUR FAITH

Why are scientists and climatologists so concerned about climate change? What is the truth behind all of the conflicting claims? Join us as HPCUMC hosts a live video lecture with Katherine Hayhoe, PhD, a world-renowned climate scientist, educator, Director of the Climate Science Center at Texas Tech, and Evangelical Christian from 7:00-8:30 pm on Friday, October 18th. Dr. Hayhoe will be joining us by video from Texas. She will also be taking questions from the audience.

UMW will be hosting a free dessert after-event, donations accepted in support of UMW mission partners.

If you have concerns about the environment, or have questions about what we know about Earth's changing climate, now is your chance to hear from someone who is actually doing the research. Join us for an evening of enlightenment, and education!
